TO GARFIELD

The Colored Voters of the Tenth Congressional District Make Another Very Earnest Appeal to Share in Any Division of the Offices that May be Made.

They Have Hitherto Been the Mewers of Wood and Drawers of Water for the Party at the South and They Demand Some Pay for Their Services.

On the evening of the twenty-first ultimo, at a meeting held at Ham's hall, the follow-ing address was adopted:

ation for his political services, if indeed he is to be treated otherwise than a man, actuated by like aspirations, then he should know it and be ordered to report elsewhere for duty. In our tenth congressional district, where the black element is large, the party is upheld by the negro. But what has the administration ever done for the colored people in this respect? What does it propose to do? The question of the colored man holding official position under his government when competent to do so, involves a principle of right and wrong, a question which must concern the rights of every citizen of the republic, and the only way to deternaise its justice is by the ad homines view of the situation. Let any brave man, of whatever race, submit himself to the same unnatural restraints, and unless his heart is steeled against every manly sentiment, he will repel the treatment as an outrage upon civilization and an insult to heaven. But the meaning of this opposition is made manifest from the governing sentiment of our times. The human mind, when selfishly enlisted, does not hesitate to assert its convictions even when fettered by gross error. Regardless of any true standard of equity and justice, a thousand and one reasons are given to perpetuate a procerpitive custom. But undertake to restrain General A, or Judge B, who by interviews talk disparagingly against colored men holding official position, or transfer these honors from the class now enjoying them to those restrained, and soon a cry would be heard, from mountain and valley, and throughout our borders, of a high-handed outrage committed against the best citizens of America. So it would be, we are loyal and stand ready to do whatsoever our government commands. That outrage is none the less when perpetrated against any other citizen invested with the full immunities of his government. That we are helpless of ourselves does not destroy the perogative of civil law. For it may be said that the Republican party, from a summary of facts, is powerless of itself, with 1,000 cases Garrett's & Ralph's Snuff. 20,000 cs. assorted Fruits and Vegetables 100,000 pounds Fancy Candy. 1,000 cases Canned Mackerel. 500 cases Canned Salmon. 500 cases Brandy Peaches. 500 cases Brandy Cherries. 500 barrels Refined Sugars. 500 barrels Yellow Sugar. 100 barrels New Molasses. 1,000 packages Lard and Hams. 50,000 Fresh Cocoanuts. 1,000 bags Almonds, Brazils, Peanuts, chaims yet demands his services. It withholds from him privileges, yet asks his votes as a contribution to the support of the same organization which spurns him. Find another government anywhere under the sun which so stullifies itself. We therefore insist that if the party is bound by anything, it is bound by its own acts; and having incorporated into the national constitution that sundamental principle that all men are equallbefore the law, it would be a breach of faith to mankind to invalidate the sacred pledge. Seeming wisdom will never suffice; it will never atom for acts of injustice perse. Let justice be done and leave the consequences with God.

MENKEN BROTHERS.

He said the Anchor line had years ago opened up an immense trade on the great highway, the Mississippi river. This had checked railroad monopolies, which had threatened to take charge of trade.— The Mississippr river was the great protection to commercial interests from these railroad monopolies. The Anchor-line was a home institution, and on its boats their wives and children could be shipped, and be taken care of by the officers. It was a line of the greatest value to Memphis, and he now presented a piano to the Belle Memphis as a testimonial from the people of this city. Captain Ad Storm, superintendent of the Anchor-line at this point, responded, briefly
